Instructions

Set the timer to five minutes and start playing. The first player rolls the dice and holds the timer in his/her hand. The number that the dice shows, tells the player sitting on the left from which category he/she has to pick a card. Then the term on the card has to be explained to the first player. If the first player manages to find out the term on the card, he can pass on the timer to the next player. Then it's the second player's turn to roll the dice. The first round ends when the time is up. The player who has the timer is out of the game. The game continues until there's only one player left. In case a player doesn't understand a term or cannot explain it, it is allowed to pick another card.
